THE THREE LOOKS

THE FAREWELL SERMON BY
T. H. McALLISTER

We publish below the Farewell sermon by Mr McAllister. This sermon was not preached Sunday last owing to the arrival of Rev. Brown, of Red Deer, to conduct special services in furtherance of the Forward Movement.

LOOKING BACKWARD

It is sometimes good to look back on the past and oftentimes it is unavoidable.

It calls forth regrets for the past failure, and yet on the other hand a retrospect of the past reveals what God has done for us and what we have been privileged to do for Him. Past mercies ensure future confidence. Goodness and mercy have followed us all our days. The hand of God has led us safely along life's journey. We have been preserved, cared for, watched over and shielded from danger by Him, who never slumbers or sleeps. His eye has rested on us every moment. We have been led and guided by His Spirit and not one of His great and precious promises have failed us. We have been united together in the bond of Christian love and fellowship, that love a foretaste of the love above. We are journeying together to the one Eternal Home, and another summer has brought us near to our desired haven. As we look back on the past summer's work and think of the loving kindness of our God, granting us all the mercies that are necessary for the maintenance of life, privileging us to meet together in His House, enabling us to join in the service of the Sanctuary and enjoying the glorious privilege of worshiping God according to the dictates of our conscience. Surely with the Psalmist we can say 'Bless the Lord, Oh my soul and forget not all His benefits'. Yet our lives have not been without the dark clouds of sorrow and disappointment. There have been times when things have not worked out as we desired, and the experience was bitter. We could not understand the 'why' and 'wherefor' of the calamity. It was the thing most unexpected, most unlooked for. We failed to see the Hand of God in the cloud. The Master has been trying to teach us the meaning of 'bearing the cross' and as we look back on what seemed to be the unjust and cruel, we realize to-day that the thorn was God's best gift to the soul. It has taught us the meaning of humility if soul, and by recognizing its result in our life we will be better fitted to meet and endure future adversity. We have been brought into vital union with Him, Whose love and friendship knows no end, and now there comes to all of us the important question —How have we lived our past?

Have we loved the sins and pleasures of this world, or have we sought to serve and please our Master, like Moses, have we chosen to suffer affliction with the people of God, rather than enjoy the pleasures of sin, which are but for a season?

Some of us have tried to serve our God, and yet we must confess what unprofitable servants we have been. We have not risen to all our privileges. We have not used our time and talents to the best advantage. Golden opportunities have been lost in the pursuit of those things which are self-satisfying and only transient. We have lost hold of those things which pertain to our eternal good and eternal profit.

How little we have known of self-sacrificing love, that love which brings sunshine and joy into the life of others. So on this last Sabbath of our summer work we come confessing our sins and negligences, knowing that our God is plenteous in mercy.

Then there are some of us who have listened to the living invitations of our God during this summer and yet we find ourselves still outside the field of Grace. We have turned a deaf ear to the call from Heaven. And now in the name of the Master I would point you to the Cross which calls us to look back, it being a past event in the world's history, and by faith see our great Substitute. The Cross, the place of forgiveness, the place of power, the place of joy; for there the enemy of our souls was defeated: there

Local Notes of Interest

Miss Strachan, of Tuledo Hospital, is visiting her mother.

The new Orchestra Chauvin of 9 instruments is practising for the opening of the new I.O.O.F. Hall on Oct. 15th. Their renderings will be a treat to all music lovers in our district.

In other columns of this issue appear some important municipal advertisements.

The improved weather has been of help to the farmers who are able to resume operations.

Mrs Cameron, of McLaughlin, was a visitor to Chauvin, Tuesday.

Look out for the Grand Opening of the new Oddfellow Hall, at Chauvin, Wednesday, October 15th.

our wills are brought into subjection to the Divine Will and our hard hearts are melted in the presence of boundless love.

I beseech you, therefore brethren, to surrender yourselves at His pierced feet, have the past put under the blood and begin to live in the power and energy of the Spirit, and be able to say in the words of St Paul 'But, now in Christ Jesus, ye who some times were afar off, are now made nigh by the blood of Christ.'

LOOKING FORWARD

Having the past forgiven and determined to live for God, we can afford to forget the past and look forward with renewed energy and great expectation. We do not know what is in store for us, we have no eyes to pry into the future. Dark days may be near at hand for some of us, but we do not perceive them. Our joys are also concealed from us until the times of their arrival, and this is wisely ordered by the Lord. Sunshine and shadow have mingled in the days that are past, they will be mingled in the days that are to come.

But hand in hand with the Master, we need not fear what they may bring.

He knows, He cares, He loves us, God is in everything, so fear not to meet the future though hidden from thy sight, it can only veil God's purpose and that is always right. He knows what is best for us and we cannot dictate to Him, but rest assured that all things concerning us shall be ordered for the best. His Wisdom is perfect and he has the right to choose for us the very path which shall best secure our happiness and that is nothing; one of our hopefuls had a murphy of such gigantic proportions that he, with the help of a big car, was able to bring this giant of the garden to a safe place of rest in a local store. This production of giant spuds has been very contagious in this district as we have a local store front filled with a few of them.

OUR SERIAL STORY

CHAPTER 30
A letter from Africa

Mary Ann went about her usual work on the day following Sam's visit with a greater cheerfulness and sense of general content than she had known for a long time. Her morning was fully occupied between milk ing the cows, feeding the calves and pigs, an hour with the poultry and young chickens, and then dinner to get ready for old Dawson and the hired man at noon. In the afternoon the weekly churning and buttermaking did not allow of much time for connected thought on subjects outside themselves, but from time to time, over her churning, Mary Ann would let her mind run on scraps here and there of Sam's conversation of the evening before, and they promised well for when she gald M'Leod's wedding before any one else in the settlement—even before the minister—and after the butter had started to come and during the more deliberate turns of the barrel churn while it was gathering, she sketched out the probable course of that happy event—Daisy, of course, would be bridesmaid and Bert best man—or maybe Chris Raye, now he was to be one of the family. Would Marion Enderby wear white or colored? That was a nice question, involving as it did a claim to youth or admission of age on the part of the bride which would expose her to criticism whichever way she decided. Mary Ann was in an unusually kind mood, and had just decided in favor of white as quite suitable when the increasingly heavy thud of butter called her back to realities. After running off the whey, putting in some fresh cold water and giving the churns a few turns to make the butter gather, she put it on the butter board and then followed the salting and working—a process too strenuous to allow of any thought or breath for aught else, but when Mary Ann came to the making of the pound prints she picked up the thread of her thoughts at another point—so Daisy had managed to catch a young man after all! Well, maybe it was as well—although Daisy was a little too sharp and ready with her tongue she could work if she liked, and then she knew the ways of the country, and Mr. Chris, though he was a nice, well-mannered young man, was terrible green. The old folks at the Dingle too would be pleased to see Mr. Bert settling down and would be real glad to have a nice young lady like Evelyn to home, with their own daughters living near by. Yes, on the whole, Mary Ann decided, when the time came for her to announce it publicly, that Daisy's engagement should be put before the settlement in a favorable light, and her self-denying ordinance to give no hint of it at present would be more than compensated for by being able to say—in course, I've known about it this long while, and the day fixed and all, even before the minister, but I don't meddle with other folks' affairs.

At last the buttermaking was finished, the various utensils washed and put in the dairy, the house tidied up and her own working dress exchanged for a clean highly starched print dress suitable for the warm day, and for an hour or two's leisure before the mailman came, followed by the usual dropping in of neighbours to see if there were any letters or papers. For a few minutes Mary Ann sat down in the old rocker, a little back from the open front door, out of the sun and still to have the benefit of the fresh outer air, and deliberated how she should spend the leisure time—for leisure with Mary Ann was only a comparative term, and this afternoon it meant such occupation for her hands as would not interfere with the easy freedom of her thoughts. The alternatives of making over an old Sunday dress for second best or of knitting some mitts for the summer Fair only presented themselves to her mind to be rejected—both useful and necessary in their place, but not in harmony with her humour to day. At last the light of inspiration, followed by a complacent smile, brightened up her rather heavy features and she rose quickly and went into the adjoining room, which she had made her own since her mother's death. In a few minutes she returned and laid upon the table a large parcel covered with a piece of clean sheeting, which, on the removal of many pins, revealed several blocks or squares of patch-work, of an intricate pattern, together with a number of rolls of materials of many sizes and colours. Mary Ann drew up a chair to the table and sat down to gloat over her treasure. To think she had been half a day to think as I never thought of that before—and me too so when I've seen it lying there in the drawer ever to take it out—much less to have the heart to finish it—and mother would be real glad if she knew it's just the very thing, and my feelings will be in every stitch I put in! The unfinished quilt had a history of its own, the materials had had been gathering a long time and represented most of the new frocks which had been worn in the settlement for the past four or five years. The actual piecing together of the (for it was to be a crazy quilt—the type which allows most scope for the imagination and ingenuity of the artist) had only been commenced some year or so before, when, under the influence of an appeal at her place of worship, Mary Ann had determined to make an offering of her treasures and of her labour to the Indian mission cause of her denomination. She had worked at it with great zeal, at first, in the face of some discouragement from her mother, to whom such Indians as the old lady had met with did not appeal, their persons did not suggest the use of soap and water and their attire was obviously innocent of a weekly wash—besides, a quilt, in her mind, presupposed bedstead and a floor—things hardly probable of finding among the wandering dwellers in teepees. Still, Mary Ann might have persevered to the end for she was not without a gift of obstinacy, if only she had remained true to her first flush of missionary sacrifice, but, alas! for human nature, as the quilt grew in intricacy and beauty under her hands, she was betrayed by the creature of her own devising.

While still outwardly proof to her mother's arguments, her pious purpose was by degrees sapped away by thoughts which came to her own mind as she stitched away at her task—after all, would even the most enlightened squaw appreciate as it should be appreciated the elaborate 'craziness' of the quilt—much less could she enter into the associations that were linked with some of the pieces in the squares—that lovely bit of delaine, for instance, in the centre with twined hearts in silk herring-boning, from the dress Susan Brown had made in town for her wedding with Jake Smith, and then Jake went off and married Maria McKail the day before the wedding—what would that piece mean to an Indian? It would be nothing to a squaw but so much protection against a frosty night. It

Mary Ann about the doings in town, but being a married man he was skilled in the reading of the feminine barometer and never outstayed his welcome. With another half hour or so that particular square on which Mary Ann was engaged when he came would have been finished, and it was with a decided feeling of offence she folded up her work and replaced it in her room, and came back to sort out the mail before any one else came to the office.

It was with a very unusual lack of interest that Mary Ann set about her task. The big bundles of weekly papers were laid on one side, and after changing the date of the office rubber stamp and giving it two or three trial dabs on a piece of wastepaper to see that it gave a clear impression, she sat down at the desk and cut the string with which the package of letters were tied, unfastened them conveniently to her hand for stamping.

So preoccupied were her thoughts that she proceeded with her task mechanically, not even taking the trouble to read the addresses, much less to conjecture on the probable contents of the various letters. Once indeed, she paused at an envelope with a black border—Mrs. Enderby, The Dingle—but passed it on with the rest, after mentally deciding that the border of black was too narrow to announce the demise of Aunt Mary or any near relative of the family. She had reached the last one, and was already preparing to rise from her chair as she gave it an extra vigorous stamp to mark the completion of her work when her eye caught some letters written in bold, dashing style in the bottom left-hand corner of the large

Mr McAllister reported that he had had a conversation with a member of the Agricultural Society, who had informed him that it was the intention of the Agricultural Society to arrange something in the interests of the returned men for the 11th of November; but that, seeing that the G.W.V.A were going ahead and making their own arrangements for the named date said Society did not like to feel as though they were "butting in". The feeling of the meeting was that anything which the Agricultural Society was willing to do would be very acceptable, and would certainly not be looked upon as "butting in" in any sense of the term; and Secretary was instructed to see the President of the Society in the matter.

The meeting was adjourned.

promote His glory. We are blind and ignorant and defective in our judgement and estimation of things; we have no just appreciation of what is best to form, mature and ripen our character. We dare not choose our own path, we cannot advance safely through life without His guiding Hand. We would like to choose an easy path, forgetful that the path to Glory is rugged and trying; that every virtue may be exercised, and every grace be brought into action and earthly hopes exchanged for heavenly and eternal treasures.

He watches carefully the seed of Divine Grace in the heart, waters it with the dew of heaven, and ripens it to perfection by the constant operation of His Spirit.

Shall we doubt His faithfulness in the future? Shall we not rather feel the strength and power of His Covenant and unchangeable Love? Shall we not yield to Him the best and most hallowed of our thoughts and affections and so live to please Him?

We are called to serve, and Oh! The greatness of our calling! There is a great field of labor in front of us. The need of human hearts is great and the Gospel alone can meet the need. In the midst of all the vicissitudes of life, the human heart cries for rest; and this rest can only be found in God. The comfort of the poor and the exaltation of the humble

To shut ourselves up from mankind is, in most cases to lead a selfish as well as a dull life. Our duty is to make ourselves useful and thus life may be most interesting, and yet comparatively free from anxiety. Is it true that the ordinary duties of life in our country, Commerce, Manufacture and Agriculture—the pursuits to which the vast majority are and must be devoted—are incompatible with the dignity or nobility of life. Surely not. Whether a life is noble or ignoble depends not on the calling which is adopted, but on the spirit in which it is followed. The humblest life may be noble, while that of the most powerful monarch or the greatest genius contemptible. May we realize our obligations to God and to our fellow-men and put forth all our energies and talents in this blessed service—the uplifting and betterment of humanity.

by faithfulness in the daily round and common task, by living the Christ-like life, and telling men of a higher and nobler life.

Let us look forward with a great expectancy, for greater is He who is for us than all that can be against us. Let us bear the image of our Master by exhibiting an unselfish life.

Selfishness is lost in love, Love for Him Whose love we know All our treasure is above If we to the Saviour go.

LOOKING UPWARD

This is the Christian watchword, the success of the future depends upon the upward look. David said 'I will lift up mine eyes from whence cometh my aid'. In other words David said, I will take away mine eyes from beholding vanity and fix them on the God of the hills. To look within for help is to find none, to look around we are disappointed, to look means all that the soul requires.

When Peter took his eyes off Christ he began to sink and the reason why so many of us are sinking in the Christian life is because we have our eyes on Christ; and we shall never rise until we change our object of gaze. Our spiritual vision must be kept undimmed, looking at Christ we become like Him.

The upward life to the Christian is bright. To Stephen it revealed an open heaven and a glorified Saviour. To the child of God today it reveals an open heaven and a coming Saviour. Stephen died the martyr's death but Stephen wears the martyr's crown. If we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him and be partakers of His Glory.

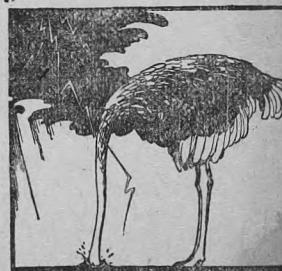

Where are your eyes? Some men are looking at fame, some at pleasure, some wealth, some popularity and consequently they see no beauty in Christ. The One Whom God considers to be the loveliest in Heaven and on earth has no attraction for them, but the man whose spiritual sight is keen sees a beauty and comeliness in Christ that commands the obedience and homage of His Heart. Let us divorce the pleasures of sin, brethren by setting our affections on things above where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God, and be able to say with one united testimony 'I looked on Him, He looked on me and we were one for ever.'

He watches carefully the seed of Divine Grace in the heart, waters it with the dew of heaven, and ripens it to perfection by the constant operation of His Spirit.

Shall we doubt His faithfulness in the future? Shall we not rather feel the strength and power of His Covenant and unchangeable Love? Shall we not yield to Him the best and most hallowed of our thoughts and affections and so live to please Him?

We are called to serve, and Oh! The greatness of our calling! There is a great field of labor in front of us. The need of human hearts is great and the Gospel alone can meet the need. In the midst of all the vicissitudes of life, the human heart cries for rest; and this rest can only be found in God. The comfort of the poor and the exaltation of the humble

To shut ourselves up from mankind is, in most cases to lead a selfish as well as a dull life. Our duty is to make ourselves useful and thus life may be most interesting, and yet comparatively free from anxiety. Is it true that the ordinary duties of life in our country, Commerce, Manufacture and Agriculture—the pursuits to which the vast majority are and must be devoted—are incompatible with the dignity or nobility of life. Surely not. Whether a life is noble or ignoble depends not on the calling which is adopted, but on the spirit in which it is followed. The humblest life may be noble, while that of the most powerful monarch or the greatest genius contemptible. May we realize our obligations to God and to our fellow-men and put forth all our energies and talents in this blessed service—the uplifting and betterment of humanity.

Plain Speaking
On Wheat QuestionUp To Western Farmers To Assist In Financing Sale Of Crops

"I f through timidity," said Sir Thomas White, "we said we would not borrow any more money to make advances to Great Britain, it would mean that the grain raised on Canadian farms would remain here and would never get into the elevators, and be sold in the markets of the world, and there would be a panic all through the west and throughout the country."

Plain speaking, that; but the situation is one that demands plain speaking. The farmers and merchants of the west must make success in the forthcoming Victory Loan a certainty.

They can do it. It is Victory Loans which bring the $2.15 figure for wheat to the west. It is simply up to the farmers to invest every cent they can scrape up in Victory Bonds.

Canada must stand on its own legs in this matter, and the farmers are port.

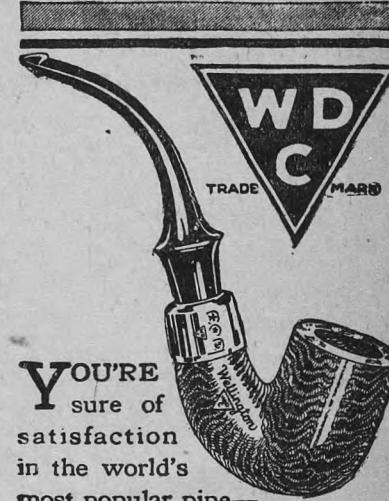

Buying Victory Bonds is a matter of sound common sense.

Sheep And Swine Association To Hold Big Show

Entries For Sale Oct. 22-23 Are Being Received By Secretary

Entries for the annual sale of pure bred sheep and swine to be held on October 22-23 by the Alberta Provincial Sheep and Swine Breeders' Associations, are daily being received at the office of the Associations in the Civic Block, and Secretary Stark also states that inquiries for catalogues of the offerings are also being received; immediately after the closing of the entries on Monday next, September 22, a catalogue showing the breeding of the sale stock will be issued, consequently no entries can be accepted after that date.

Secretary Stark states that there is always a good demand for particularly good individual, either sheep or swine—for the improvement of flocks and herds; he has now a number of orders to purchase at the sale for buyers who are unable to attend in person, and it is expected that the sale will be a splendid success. It is the intention of the associations conducting the sale, to this year forward to Ottawa all certificates of registration for live stock purchased at this sale, and have the transfer of the new owner registered free of charge to the purchaser or seller.

A CONUNDRUM

When I was young I was beautiful and slender. I have walked on white roads, and I never go along unless pushed. Every day, instead of growing taller, I grow shorter. Some of my friends are hard, some soft, I happen to be one of the lucky ones, and am soft, I wonder if you can guess what I am?

A lead pencil.

Mr. Ostrich: "Read that! Don't waste food."

Mr. Giraffe: "Yes, I know: but food always goes a long way with us, doesn't it?"

HIDDEN NAMES

Can you find the name of a boy or girl in each of the following sentences?

Fruit makes jam esteemed by young or old.

I met a dame in a tattered gown, Will you do me a favour?

He secured her berth about a month ago.

My umbrella wants mending. A street vendor asked me to buy his wares.

You can't beat rice nor a cheap milk pudding.

Answer: (1) James, (2) Ada, (3) Willy, (4) Herbert, (5) Ella, (6) Dora, (7) Beatrice.

THE FROGS AND THE BULLS

A frog one day, sitting at the edge of a pond, saw two bulls fighting in a meadow. He cried out to a companion:

"Look at that dreadful fight! What will become of us?"

"Do not frighten yourself," replied the other. "How can their quarrels affect us? They are quite different from us in every way."

"Perhaps," said the first frog, "their life is different from ours; but, as one of them will certainly get the better of the other, he who is beaten will take refuge here in the marshes, and perhaps tread on some of us. You see therefore, we are more concerned with their quarrel than you think."

"When the rich quarrel, the poor are usually the greatest sufferers."

THE LION IN LOVE

A lion one day was passing the house of a forester, when he saw there a beautiful girl, with whom he fell in love. So great was the love of the lion for her that he sought out the forester, her father, and said to him:

"I am deeply in love with your daughter. Will you give me her hand in marriage?"

The forester was astonished at such a strange request, and was at first inclined to refuse the offer of the lion. Recollecting, however, the strength of the king of beasts, and being afraid of his wrath, he replied:

"Sir Lion, I will give my consent on two conditions. These are that you have your teeth drawn out and your claws cut, for my daughter is very young and very timid, and would certainly be frightened at them."

The lion was too deeply in love to hesitate, and he willingly agreed to the forester's wishes. No sooner was he deprived of his teeth and claws, however, than the forester saw that he was harmless, and attacked and killed him.

"Those who commit rash actions may live to regret them all their lives."

ARTLAND
ARGUS

R. A. Booth is building an addition to his residence.

Wesley Smith, of the Cornish settlement was a visitor last week.

Threshing operations have been delayed of late by the unseasonable weather we have been treated to.

Altogether different to the conventional glorious September weather, we ought to have.

Cold weather, a whisper of snow, and to complete the picture, an individual strolling around wrapped up in a fur coat.

This apparition would have been complete, but the effect was spoilt by a straw hat.

This eccentric individual, a stranger is about the only visitor we have been able to note lately, quite different to the more or less modified bustle our little hamlet can on occasion boast of.

Reports seem to agree this season that the ducks are plentiful.

Our informants report, however, that the strange disease, noted some time ago, appears to be a kind of paralysis of the legs and wings, which renders them unfit for food.

Therefore, according to the Edmonton papers, only those on the wing should be shot.

A party of 'guns' got off here a few days ago, en route for the shores of Manitou Lake.

Numerous and crowded cattle trains have lately been passing east.

It's curious how many good things seem to fizz out like the rotten stick of an old rocket.

Take for instance that proposed scheme of an hotel at Manitou Lake, with the idea of converting the place into a summer resort.

Its apparently 'spun out' and gone the way of all good things.

And there was nothing very extraordinary about the idea either—a lit tle risk perhaps, but what's that?

Look at LITTLE Manitou Lake, forging ahead like a Chicago racing car.

It would have been a grand 'ad' for Lashburn, Lloydminster, Chauvin and Artland.

But, No! Let 'the other fellow do it' and there you are, 'don't cher know?

Well, those Chauvin cars in here last Sunday—What about it?

ROBERT JUKES

"Everybody knows about it. Some people take her part and some take her husband's part." "And, I suppose there are a few eccentric individuals who mind their own business!"

under the fresh item of evidence—why the English Church minister had held a memorial service and preached a funeral sermon—in fact, just as good as buried him—though, in course, they hadn't the corpse.' The more Mary Ann thought about it, the more surprised she became; she brought out from her own room the copy of the paper which had first brought the news of Tom's death—there marked by her own hand with a black ink cross against his name, and the date of the paper, February twenty-second, and here on the letter was March twentieth, and the name of some heathen place in Africa. Slowly it began to come home to her that Tom was alive—and if alive, what then? The lack of consideration which had allowed him to survive the newspapers, and even the minister's sermon, might admit of his coming back and upsetting all her plans when everything, as she had said to herself that very afternoon, 'was going so beautiful.'

At this point Mary Ann heard the sound of a rig driving up to the door, and hastily thrusting the offending letter into her pocket, she hurried to face the world with what courage and composure she could—at least the letter's coming should be her own secret till she could see the future in a clearer light.

Immense Salt Deposits Found In Saskatchewan

Winnipeg, Sept. 18—The Salts and Potash Co., Ltd., of Kitchener, Ont., have recently discovered immense Lake near Maskakee Springs, Sask. situated on the Prince Albert branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. This deposit is what is known as a double salt produced by nature and is composed of sodium and magnesium. To the trade this commodity is known as crude Glauber's salt, or salt cake sulphate, and latest surveys indicate there are deposits to the extent of 9,000,000 tons. The crude material is at present being shipped to Kitchener, Ont., to be refined, but an evaporating plant is being constructed at Maskakee Springs and railway siding put in to develop the business on the ground and a new company is being formed to operate same, known as the Maskakee Products Ltd. The by-products will include Glauber's salt that is used extensively in paper making; Epsom Salts, bromide, common salt, magnesia, etc., much of which articles in pre-war days were imported from Germany also from the United States. Negotiations at present are under way for supplying the large paper mills on the B.C. Coast. A deposit of pigment has also been found in the same vicinity which may be used for the manufacture of paints.

Another Company known as the White Shore Chemical Co. Ltd., has been organized with headquarters at North Battleford, for the development of similar deposits in a lake at Oban, Sask., also on the line of the G.T.P. The officers of this company are Mr. C. M. Vanstone, President, P. Elarby, Vice-Pres., A. M. Swain B.A. Secy. Treas., and Prof. T. Thorvaldson, Ph.D., Chemist. The deposit in this lake has an area of eight square miles and varies in thickness up to eight inches.

Coal Resources Of Western Canada

We are told by geologists that the Province of Alberta contains about one-seventh of the known coal supply of the world, to say nothing of deposits in other provinces. Mr. A. E. Roseway, General Freight Agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is responsible for the statement that there are 45 active coal mines located on the line of the G.T.P., 44 of which are located in the Province of Alberta within 225 miles of the city of Edmonton. The coal consists of semi-anthracite, bituminous, and sub-bituminous and lignite.

SAID HIS MOTHER TO ME

"Few understand him as I," Said his mother to me.
"There are some who say he will lie,
But I'm sure it can't be.
His lips have been sweet with a song
From the days of his youth.
And always, whatever the wrong,
He has told me the truth.
"His hand, which the cold-hearted spurned.

Has been tender to me:
He has come when the stars faintly burn
Many times to my knee.
And though all old friendships have died,

And all men sneer at his ways,
I know just how hard he has tried
To be worthy of raise.

Through the nights when his fever ran high

I watched by his bed;

I answered his pitiful cry,

I heard all he said.

It was my hand he longed for back then

To stroke his hot brow:

He has called me again and again

As he's calling me now.

"Did I fail him because he was ill?

Or whimper the night that he came?

Then shall I not mother him still?

Though he's blackened with shame?

Though he's lost to the world and its joy,

And is sick as can be.

Oh, shall I not answer my boy

When he calls unto me?"

Wit should be used as a shield for defence rather than as a sword to wound others.

Useful Hints

CODFISH AND CHEESE

Carefully remove all skin and bone from half a pound of cooked cod break up the fish with a fork. Mix it with half a pint of white sauce, wellseasoned, and two tablespoons of grated cheese. Turn into a greased piedish, sprinkle breadcrumbs and grated cheese over, put little bits of butter on top and bake in the oven till brown.

HUMAN VITALITY

According to experiments with the dynamometer, a man is precisely at his weakest when he turns out of bed. His muscular force is greatly increased by his breakfast, but it attains to its highest point after midday.

It then sinks for a few hours, rises again towards evening, but steadily declines from night to morning. The chief foes of muscular force are the two extremes—over work

If a turkey becomes sick and is allowed to roam with others, eat, drink and roost, in the same places, the others will probably have the same trouble soon. If a flock becomes diseased, the land over which it wanders may become contaminated and perpetuate the disease. Therefore stamp out the disease when it first appears by killing or isolating the sick bird.

Were you at one of the big fairs this summer? If you were just tell us what you really thought of the midway and side shows.

Keep eggs in a cool, clean, dry place.

Two-thirds of the total loss in eggs takes place on the farm.

Infertile eggs regardless of where they are kept are much more resistant to deterioration than fertile eggs.

After all milking cows prove to be a mighty safe system to follow in farming.

Judge Card says:

"You sometimes wonder why a bird wins first prize at a show—I'll tell you why. It's because there ain't any better bird there."

The frankness with which a seventeen-year-old girl refers to herself as an old maid is certainly amusing.

In Oregon $48 a month is the minimum wage for women office workers, while the rate for stores is $11.10 a week, and that for factories, laundries telephone and telegraph work and domestic service is $11.61.

Genius is not a single power, but a combination of great powers. It reasons, but it is not reasoning; it judges but it is not judgement; imagines, but is not imagination; it feels deeply and fiercely, but it is not passion. It is neither because it is all.

Mirrors were used by Anglo Saxon women slung to their girdles. The same custom obtained in the time of Elizabeth and James the First. They formed the centre of many fans at that period and later. Before glass was invented horn and metal were used.
